I guide and support you

In the HABIL-Peer-Colloquium™, I support pre-docs, postdocs, and professors in transition as they strategically shape their trajectories in research, teaching, and third mission activities. Together, we refine the red thread of your academic career, develop realistic time structures, and strengthen your perseverance.

Topics such as strategic career planning, balancing academic work with family planning and parenthood, as well as long-term financial security, find space alongside collegial, peer-level exchange. I offer metacognitive orientation, reflection, and practice-oriented impulses for your next steps on the path to a professorship and beyond.

The HABIL-Peer-Colloquium™ is conceived as a multidimensional educational space in which the mathetic attitude plays a central role – with the aim of fostering individual self-efficacy and shaping sustainable educational and professional pathways over the long term.

Make use of my expertise

When I first set out on my own path toward a professorship, there was no one to show me the way. I had to gather all the necessary information on my own – without a compass and without a map. Emerging from this sense of isolation, I began in 2024 to create a program for colleagues that fills precisely this gap: the HABIL-Peer-Colloquium™.

My mission is to provide strategic support for academic careers – with clarity, structure, and a collaborative approach at eye level. I have already accompanied several scholars on their career paths, and I successfully coached one colleague to a professorship within a year.

An academic career is comparable to a mountain expedition: if you do not plan your route in advance, you risk detours and uncertainty – or missing the summit altogether. In the HABIL Peer Colloquium™, you can approach your "route planning" in a structured and well-supported way: through dedicated spaces for reflection, targeted impulses, peer exchange, and my individual guidance.
